Notes On The Cinematographer Robert

Robert Bresson Notes on the Cinematographer is my philosophy book or self-help book for putting things together in what I feel, or need, to be real in stories, images, moments. I'm sure it's one hell of a book for creative people. I don't make things so much as try to get by and live better by living elsewhere (as in outside of me).

Notes on the Cinematographer by Robert Bresson

No camera tricks, no flimflammy, just the unerring eye (and ear) of a director, an AUTEUR at the very peak of his form. NOTES ON THE CINEMATOGRAPHER is a marvel, one of the most beautiful books related to cinema ever written. In a series of short, koan-like statements, Robert Bresson explores how one captures truth and authenticity on film.

Notes On The Cinematographer Robert Bresson

Robert Bresson wrote a slim volume of his thoughts on cinema called Notes on Cinematographer which defies categorisation. What is striking and unique about Bresson is how his writing is so much like his filmmaking: the elliptical style, the epigrammatic prose, the obtuse meanings, the material rigidity, the conciseness, the frugality of means.

Robert Bresson's "Notes on Cinematography" Part One An actor simulating fear of shipwreck on the deck of a real ship battered by a real storm—we believe neither the actor, nor in the ship, nor in the storm. There must be nothing extraneous or redundant: I personally abhor manifestos or any attempts at rule making in art.
